HOUSE PREPARES FOR FINAL VOTE ON REVENUE BILL

Income Tax Is Levied On Dividends By Action Today

BULLETIN

Washington, Apr. 1—(AP)—The House today completed consideration of amendments to the new revenue bill, estimated by the Ways and Means committee to produce $1,049,000,000, and prepared for separate votes on several items before finally passing it.

The last major operations was an amendment to subject dividends paid on stock to the normal tax rates.

At present the dividends of stocks are taxable under the surtax. The maximum normal income tax is seven per cent.

The new levy would expire on July 1, 1934.

On the basis of revised Ways and Means committee estimates, the $88,000,000 item brought the total thus far placed in the revenue bill to $1,049,000,000. Under the revision, the committee reduced its estimates $37,600,000 from the $999,000,000 total announced last night.

The amendment was adopted by a standing vote of 133 to 90 but a teller vote was demanded upon which the count was 130 to 105.

An amendment to exempt the first $10,000 of income from dividends was rejected.

Washington, Apr. 1—(UP)—The House set about clearing up odds and ends of the tax bill today with the expectation that the measure would be approved and ready for the Senate in short order.

A controversy developed between House leaders and Secretary of the Treasury Mills over the amount of revenue to be expected from the bill. Although Speaker Garner and other Democratic leaders disagreed with Mills' statement that the bill would fall short of raising enough money, they pushed through an amendment devised to raise more than $80,000,000 in income taxes on dividends.

The Senate will get the bill next week. Chairman Smoot of the Senate Finance committee said he expected to start hearings about next Wednesday.

Talk Tariff Bill
The Senate was continuing with the Democratic tariff bill. Senator Hatfield, Rep., W. Va., in a lengthy speech defended the Republican ideas on tariff legislation.

It was announced that subcommittee hearings would begin next Tuesday on three bills to clarify the Volstead Act. They were introduced by Senator Sheppard, Dem., Tex. Senator Lewis, Dem., Ill., proposed in the Senate that a consolidated program be started to tighten up federal efficiency and in the interests of economy.

The Capital saw its second successive day of student visitations to Congress. Yesterday a group ejected from Kentucky coal mining regions visited Senator Costigan, Dem., Colo. Today Senator Black, Dem., Ala., was visited by four Northern College girls who protested against the death penalty for Negroes in Scottsboro, Ala., assault case.

Schools Close At Bloomington Today

Bloomington, Ill., April 1—(AP)—All public schools here were being closed today due to a deficit in school funds and it appeared likely they would not reopen this term unless the school tax levy is raised from $1 to $1.34 at a meeting April 11.

Supporting the tax increase proposal grade teachers have offered to take wage cuts of 50 per cent and all other employees of 75 per cent to keep the schools open until June and officials said even with the increased income from the higher levy 15 per cent salary reductions would be necessary to balance the budget.

At Chicago, Supt. of Schools Wm. J. Bogan yesterday ordered all schools to close nine days earlier in June and open four days later next fall to save $1,700,000 in salaries and operating expenses. A like stunt is to be saved by docking teachers for their holidays off.

Ravinia Open Air Opera Suspended

Chicago, April 1—(AP)—For lack of money, summer opera at Ravinia will be suspended this year for the first time in two decades.

This was announced by Louis Eckstein, president and chief guarantor of the open air musical classic, who expressed hope, however, that there would be a resumption in 1933.

The opera cost its guarantors $279,829 last season of which Mr. and Mrs. Eckstein contributed $187,884 while other guarantors gave $91,945.

SINGER IS BETTER.

Stevens Point, Wis., April 1—(UP)—The condition of Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink was reported "slightly improved" at St. Michael's hospital today where she is recovering from an attack of laryngitis and bronchitis.

Mme. Schumann-Heink has decided definitely against making a scheduled appearance in St. Louis next week.

Some Oddities In Wire News Today From Various Parts

JOKE ON ROBBERS

Warsaw, Ind., April 1—(UP)—Robbers who got nothing but embalming fluid and morticians' supplies when they smashed a window on the auto of E. C. Dye, Danville, Ill., salesman, discarded the articles in a nearby ditch, leaving a note admitting the April Fool joke was on them.

Dye revealed, however, that the joke was more pronounced than the thieves had suspected. A $200 motion picture camera in the front seat of the auto had escaped detection.

GOT "MR. BARKER"

Chicago, April 1—(UP)—It was April Fool's day today but the worm had turned out at the dog pound where jokesters have a habit of calling up and asking for "Mr. Barker."

The joke was on the jesters today because when they asked for "Mr. Barker," he barked right back at them—a resounding sort of bark that had just a tinge of a donkey's bray.

"Mr. Barker" was a pert little mongrel chosen specially for his duties on account of his bark and he was installed close by the telephone all day long.

WEALTH WORTHLESS

Chicago, Apr. 1—(AP)—Maurice Lippert offered his wife a whole trunk full of money and bonds, but she wasn't to be fooled by that.

"I want my $160 alimony and that's all I want," she told Judge Daniel Trude. "Let him keep his trunk. I've looked through it. The money in it is in Russian rubles, pre-war, and the bonds are German, also pre-war."

Judge Trude gave Lippert until Monday to raise some American money or go to jail. If he does he will be the 90th member of Chicago's present "Alimony Club."

TWAS TOO MUCH

Washington, Apr. 1—(AP)—Four bullets hit Annes Lane, grocer, last night but the holdup man who fired them got no cash, and Lane was not even badly hurt.

"Get it yourself," the shopkeeper told the unshaven man who leveled a pistol at him and demanded money. The gun barked and a bullet struck Lane's arm. The robber moved to the cash register and fired again, clipping the grocer's right ear.

This was too much, so Lane dived at the man, who fired twice again in the resulting struggle, grazing Lane's body each time. The holdup man had had enough by then and left fast.

WHY GARY?

New York, April 1—(UP)—Vicki Baum, popular German novelist, expressed deep pain today upon her arrival aboard the North German Lloyd liner Europa, that Gary Cooper, the tall Hollywood movie actor, refused pointblank to dance with her during the voyage, even though she offered him $3 for the privilege.

"Ah," sighed Frau Baum, "but I like the American men! They are so boyish. So different. So amusing. They never worry."

Cooper returned from an African hunting expedition, bringing with him some 50 skins of lions and

"RADIUM POISON" CAUSED DEATH OF RICH SPORTSMAN

Death Of Eben M. Byers Reveals Many More So Afflicted

New York, April 1—(UP)—Death of Eben M. Byers, Pittsburgh manufacturer and sportsman, from radium poisoning induced by prolonged consumption of a patent medicine containing radium, under investigation today by the New York Medical Examiner, as it became known that more than 100 persons are afflicted with a similar form of poisoning.

While Dr. Charles Norris, Chief Medical Examiner, was undertaking his investigation with an autopsy on the manufacturer's body, Dr. Frederick B. Flinn, a consultant in the case, informed the press that a Pittsburgh physiotherapist prescribed the radium water for Byers, and recommended its use to a number of other patients.

Dr. Norris, upon completing his autopsy, said there could be no doubt that Byers' death was caused by radium poisoning, and that it "will take two months to enlarge on the examination to determine exactly how it affected him."

Immediate federal investigation seemed unlikely, according to Chairman W. E. Humphrey of the Federal Trade Commission, who explained that the company which manufactured and sold the radium water, known as "Radithor," virtually was forced out of business after the commission had ordered it to cease misrepresenting its product.

Patients Frightened

Dr. Flinn, Director of Industrial Hygiene at Columbia University, said that one other person died last September as a result of taking radium water, and that other patients have been so frightened by that death they have refused to seek proper medical attention. The disease can be halted only in its early stages.

"Radithor" has been on sale for seven or eight years, according to Dr. Flinn. He said radium poisoning is almost impossible to diagnose except in the advanced stages and after consultation with an expert.

Byers, who was 51, began taking "Radithor" more than two years ago on advice of a Pittsburgh physiotherapist. The former national amateur golf champion had complained of pain in his arm and a general run down condition.

Byers became enthusiastic about the compound. He took as many as two and three bottles daily.

Each bottle, according to Dr. Flinn, contained one microgram of radium and one microgram of esothorium, another radio-active element. These two minute particles were mixed with triple-distilled water. One was instructed to drink from the bottle itself, the entire contents after any meal.

Each case was sold for about $30 and contained about $7 worth of radium.

Lost Good Feeling

About a year and a half ago, according to his physicians, Byers lost the "toned-up feeling." He lost weight and suffered severe headaches. He felt pain especially in his jaw. He lost several teeth.

Byers' case was hopeless from the time a diagnosis was made a year ago, it was said. Five micrograms of radium deposited in the bones over a period of years, Dr. Flinn said, were sufficient eventually to cause death. Byers had taken hundreds.

"Radithor" was manufactured by the Bailey Radium Laboratories, Inc., of East Orange, N. J. The head of the laboratories was listed as Dr. William J. A. Bailey, not named in "American Physicians and Surgeons," the "Medical Directory of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut," or "Who's Who in American Medicine."

An investigation of radium dial paint deaths of seven workers in the plant of the United States Radium plant at East Orange was prolonged to include the Bailey product. The Commission's complaint against Bailey's company charged, among other things, false and misleading advertising. Dr. Flinn was one of those testifying that the product was dangerous.

Two Types On Market

Two distinct types of so-called "radium water" are on the market, Dr. Flinn explained today. "Radithor" is an example of the first type, which is actually a solution of radium. The second type is put up in gallon jars which have been lined with an alleged "radium ore." The supposed "ore" emanates alpha particles into ordinary water.

The only benefit, Flinn said, to be derived from such a compound was identical with that which comes from drinking large quantities of ordinary water.

Under no circumstances, Dr. Flinn said, should fatal effects of radium, as exemplified in the case of Byers, be confused with radium treatments for cancer patients. No radium in such treatment actually enters the cancer patient's body.

When radium is taken internally, Dr. Flinn said, it is attracted immediately to the bone structures.

All Republicans Invited To Meeting—

All Republican voters of the county are invited to attend the meeting of Len Small supporters at the Circuit Court room in the court house at 8 o'clock this evening. The meeting will be in charge of County Judge Wm. L. Leach and several interesting addresses will be made by out-of-town and local speakers.

SMALL RECALLS HIS ATTITUDE TOWARD FARMER

Custer's Opponent Is Refused Permit To Visit Galesburg

Chicago, April 1—(AP)—The contests for gubernatorial nominations went full blast today with discussions of farm relief, prohibition and taxation seasoned by a few factional thrusts.

Len Small, Republican, in an address to the farming population of the state, cited the record of the state Department of Agriculture during the eight years he was Governor and said it gave assurance that if he were reelected he would "follow the policy of doing everything that the state government can do to assist the farmers."

"You will recall," Small said, "that we did much good work in the suppression of tuberculosis among cattle, in stamping out plant pests, and in eradicating diseases among domestic animals. I shall again bring to the Governor's office that intimate, personal and sympathetic interest in the problems of the farmer that has been taught me by my own lifelong experience on the farm."

William H. Malone, Republican, issued a statement in which he said one of his campaign buses equipped with a loud speaker had been denied a permit to broadcast on the streets of Galesburg and that the driver had been arrested.

"I had not intended to hold a meeting in Galesburg," Malone said, "but after the outrageous treatment accorded my representatives and workers I have decided to call a meeting there in order to give the citizens of Galesburg an opportunity to hear something about the other side of the vital question now facing the voters of Illinois."

CHARGE DENIED

Galesburg, Ill., April 1—(UP)—The statement of William H. Malone, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, that the driver of one of his campaign buses was denied a permit to operate in Galesburg and was arrested, was declared untrue today by Mayor J. E. Anderson, Acting Police Chief A. B. Goff and Assistant City Clerk C. N. Bandy.

Malone issued a statement in Chicago, saying he was informed his bus had been refused a permit to broadcast on the streets of Galesburg, that his driver had been arrested, and that as a result he had decided to call a meeting in that city.

The Mayor and City Clerk said a permit to distribute handbills was denied in accordance with a city ordinance prohibiting such distribution but that no arrests were made and that the bus driver was not restricted in any way from the use of loud speaker equipment. The Chief of Police said no arrests were made nor was the Malone party interfered with in any way.

VESTAL, WHIP OF HOUSE, IS CALLED TODAY

Indiana Congressman Died In Hospital At Washington

Washington, April 1—(AP)—Representative Albert H. Vestal of Indiana, the Republican whip of the House, died of heart disease today at the Naval Hospital.

Vestal's death was announced by Sergeant-at-Arms Kenneth Romney of the House.

Two days ago Vestal collapsed and was sent to the Naval Hospital.

His condition had been reported as improving.

Vestal, who was 57 years old, was elected to the 65th Congress from the 8th Indiana district and had served continuously since. He was born January 18, 1875 on a farm in Madison county, Indiana.

He was a graduate of Valparaiso University and was admitted to the bar when only 21 years old. He was Prosecuting Attorney of the 50th Judicial Circuit in Indiana from 1900 to 1904. He is survived by a widow and two children.

Romney said Vestal died at 10:55 A. M. Funeral arrangements are to be completed later in the day.

The Indianan had been Republican whip for the last six years and in that capacity had been brought into close contact with the Republican membership, his duties being the mustering of party forces for votes on the floor.

Until the reorganization of the House at the beginning of this session, he had been chairman of the Patents committee and sponsored numerous measures to revise the patents and copyright laws.

When the House convened Representative Hawley of Oregon, a ranking Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, told the members that because of the importance of the pending tax bill, an adjournment out of respect of Vestal would not be asked.

"We believe that if Mr. Vestal could be communicated with he would say the welfare of the country should come first," Hawley declared. "We will ask an adjournment out of respect later."

BABY RESCUED FROM DEATH IN MINE DRILL HOLE

Okla. Miners Won In Fight To Liberate Imprisoned Babe

Miami, Okla., April 1—(AP)—Brave Baby Gerald Collins lived today, saved from a terrifying prison deep in a mine drill hole by strong arms and warm hearts.

Wounded and bruised, but with a courageous "I'm all right," the three-year-old, doubled up for eleven hours twenty feet below the surface of the earth at the Mary Ann lead and zinc mine near Picher, was rescued through a parallel shaft last night.

"He's alive," cried a husky miner. Out from beyond the lights of the little rescue area a roar of thanks, echoed through the hills from the throats of thousands of watchers.

Whirled in an ambulance eleven miles to the Baptist hospital here, coddling in the mother's embrace of Mrs. Paul Collins, little Gerald "talked a blue streak" and didn't appear badly hurt.

But x-ray pictures were scanned today for possible fractures by three physicians, who waited at the rescue shaft until the boy was taken from the drill-hole.

There was danger, too, said Dr. General Pinnell of pneumonia as a result of exposure.

Toddling after his workbound father, Gerald stopped to play about the 250-foot drill hole yesterday morning. Its maximum diameter is about a foot. He fell in and with his knees doubled up and his arms pinned above his head, wedged twenty feet down. There he stayed until volunteers and miners of the tri-state lead and zinc district got him out after a frantic battle to pierce solid rock.

Sterling; State Attorney John E. Northrup; Secretary of State, William J. Stratton; State Auditor, C. Wayland Brooks, Congressman - at - Large, Carl H. Zeiss.

MIDWEST GANG OF ROBBERS IS REPORTED TAKEN

Chicago's Detective Chief Announces Their Arrest

Chicago, April 1—(UP)—A comely brunette, known only as "Jean" and described as about 19, was sought today as the planner of a score or more Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin kidnappings and bank robberies for which four suspects are under arrest.

The girl, whose parents were said to live in Galesburg, Ill., was the sweetheart of another member of the gang, name withheld, who also is being sought.

She was named, authorities indicated, in a confession claimed to have been obtained from Edward Bennett, one of the four suspects under arrest and said to have been the source of the information on which the other arrests were made.

According to police, Jean made forays from a headquarters at Peoria to various towns where robberies were planned, obtaining the information which the bandits used.

She would walk into a bank, and various pretexts, acquaint herself with the hours, the names and addresses of officers and their habits, and the amount of loot possible. This done, she would aid the gang in planning its kidnappings and robberies.

Bennett, in questioning today, was said to have admitted that he acted as a woman and sat beside the driver of the bus and automobile to fool law enforcement officers into believing they were a harmless couple on a legitimate mission.

Other members of the gang, it was said, would hide in the rear seat while in front sat the driver and Bennett, the latter dressed in women's clothing, powdered and painted and with his eyebrows arched.

Chicago, April 1—(AP)—Police said today they had tightened their grip of evidence around a band of alleged bank robbers they seized in a lightning swoop on an apartment in the fashionable suburb of Lake Forest.

Six men were under arrest and three were officially said to have confessed staging nine spectacular holdups of six Illinois and two Wisconsin banks in which bank officers were terrorized into helping the robbers to loot estimated at $70,000.

The raid on the apartment was staged last night and so rapid were the movements of the police that four men found within had no chance to reach for an arms rack or to reach for the 13 shotguns, four revolvers and 12 automatic pistols.

Records of a whole series of midwestern bank holdups of recent date and of kidnappings for ransom some were being scanned and questioning was being pursued by the officials in the hope of clearing up the crimes. Officials of victimized banks were also summoned to view the men.

Some Loot Recovered
Although early police reports placed loot recovered at the Lake Forest apartment at about $15,000 in cash and several thousand dollars in securities, later announcements said the amount was about $3,000 in cash and no securities.

The men whom the authorities credited with the confessions were Mickey Yaro, tenant of the apartment; Edward Bennett, and Ed Hallgren. The identity of the fourth man seized was not revealed but the police said they were satisfied he was not connected with the robberies, Edward Kuzma was later seized as an accomplice whose part police said, was to provide refuge in his home to the others after the robberies. The police said the confessions implicated Frank Faifer as being a member of the actual robber band and as a search for Faifer was started, it was discovered he was in the Cook county jail on a charge of staging a minor robbery.

Confessed Robberies
The banks which the three men confessed to robbing and their reported loot in each were:

First National Bank of Mazon, Grundy county, Illinois, $13,000.

State Bank of Mendelmin, Ill., two separate robberies, $2,700 and $10,000.

Tazewell County National Bank, Delavan, Ill., $6,500.

Maquon State Bank, Knox county, Illinois, $32,000.

Ringwood State Bank, McHenry county, Illinois, $2,000.

Kirkland State Bank, DeKalb county, Illinois, about $25.

Citizens Bank, Delavan, Wis., $7,000.

Milton Junction, Wisconsin Bank, $4,000.

Reports that the trio also confessed to robbing the York State Bank in DuPage county, Illinois, of $5,000 were denied by the police, who also said the small loot in the Kirkland bank robbery was the robbers' share because bank employees drove them away with pistol fire.

Last night's raid and captures climaxed an investigation of several weeks, which grew out of a tip received by Arthur E. Bennett, (Continued on Page 2)

MY GARDENS

WHY do you plant these gardens giving such toilsome care? Few will admire their beauty. None will your ardor share.

"Though I have heard that question Hundreds of times before Gladly I welcome your asking—Happy to answer once more.

Never I planted a garden. Never I nurtured a flower. Counting my service a burden—Grudging the day and the hour.

Seeking alone for pleasure. Looking for nothing but fun. Playing with earth and water. Sporting with rays of the sun.

Bringing a bulb to blossom. Coaxing a rosebush to bear. Soaking my skin in sunshine. Sweeping my lungs with the air.

Mornings are filled with glory. Noondays, with heaven aground. Twilights are dreamy with fragrance. Night, with a slumber profound.

Why do I plant these gardens Working with growing things? Just for the joy of doing. Just for the pleasure it brings.

Pierce-Walter Wedding Saturday

John Robert Pierce and Miss Minerva Walter took the marriage vows at the Little Brown Church in the Vale at Nashua, Iowa, last Saturday, and are now beginning their wedded life together at their farm in the country.

The groom, who is one of the community's most estimable young men is a son of Mrs. John Pierce of Rochelle. The bride has a wide acquaintance, having been a nurse at the Lincoln Hospital for several years when Dr. A. W. Chandler was the owner of the institution. She took post graduate work in Chicago, later, in nursing, and has been connected with Chicago hospitals.

The couple have the best wishes of many friends and associates for a long, happy life.

IT PAYS TO KEEP SHOES IN SHAPE

It pays to buy form-fitting wooden shoe trees to keep your new spring footgear unwrinkled and in shape. They are relatively inexpensive, considering the good job they do.

Grand Hotel Vicki Baum
Hugh Walpole says: "Any reader who, after reading the first few pages, can put it away has simply no curiosity. It is a novel that produces the illusion of reality. I feel that I must have stayed late in a large hotel in Berlin and have met several curious persons; an ageing star of the ballet, a handsome young crook, an ailing little clerk, and other queer fish." Knute Rockne, man builder Stuhldreher.

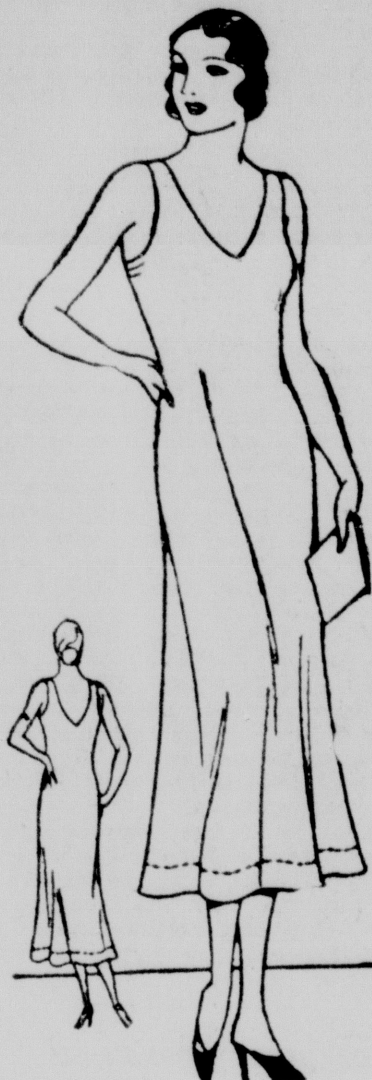

This book is the life, from the inside, of one of the most extraordinary men of our time. Rockne's story is far more than the story of a great football coach, who rose from comparative obscurity to world-wide eminence. The author who is now head coach at Villanova college, was one of the famous Four Horsemen, and knew Rockne as coach, teacher, and personal friend.

A RAILROAD TO PLAY WITH.

A Philadelphia lawyer the other day bought himself a railroad. It is a standard-gauge line that runs from West Denton, Md., to Lewes, Del., it has four box cars and a locomotive by way of equipment and it is just 41 miles long. He got it at a receiver's sale for $26,000.

After remarking that he intended to run the railroad, at least for the time being, the purchaser added:

"I really don't know much about it, but I am reliably informed that it has a locomotive which works."

Now the newspaper dispatches which told about all this did not mention just why the man bought the railroad. But it is pleasant to look at the implications in that little statement of his and to conclude that he did it quite irrationally, just by way of yielding to that vague desire that all of us nourish—the desire to have a railroad all our own to play with.

Railroads, of course, aren't to be spoken of lightly. One might as well yearn for ownership of the United States navy as for ownership of a trunk line railway. But the ordinary citizen goes ahead and yearns, regardless.

Every small boy, at one time or another, plans to be a railroad engineer. He grows up and becomes a real estate salesman, or an orchestra conductor, or a high school principal, instead; but almost always he retains in his heart a trace of that old affection for puffing engines and shiny rails, and he is apt to tell himself, now and then, that being a railroad man must be an interesting life.

This, probably, explains the phenomenal popularity of toy trains as Christmas gifts. They are bought for little boys, of course; but they are bought by grown men, and two-thirds of the time it is dad, and not sonny, who gets the biggest kick out of them. The man who buys such an outfit is getting even with fate. He now owns a railroad, and he can shuttle the cars about and twiddle with the switches at will.

This Philadelphia man has gone the rest of one better. He owns a real, sure-enough railroad. We don't know just why he bought it, but it's nice to think that he did it for the same reason that the rest of us would, if we could—just for the fun of it.

WINE FOR FOREIGN ATHLETES.

Foreign athletes who are in the United States during the coming summer to compete in the Olympic games are going to have to struggle along on the same sort of diet that the United States athletes get. Prohibition Administrator Woodcock has made it clear that the foreigners will not be permitted to bring beer and wine along with them, although in their own countries they are accustomed to use those beverages while in training.

This, to be sure, doesn't make any especial difference to anyone—except, perhaps, to the athletes themselves. But it does seem as if some way might have been found whereby the visitors could have had their customary menus, without undermining the American prohibition structure. The ruling will create a minor irritation that might have been avoided.

A PHILIPPINE BOYCOTT?

A dispatch from Manila to the New York Herald-Tribune reports that the Philippine Civic Union, strongest of the insurgent Filipino political groups, is laying plans for a boycott of American manufactures as a means of expressing the islanders' desire for complete and immediate independence.

If such a move should be put into effect, it would give rise to an exceedingly odd situation.

The nation is pledged to set the Philippines free. Bills are now pending in Congress to set a definite date. But if the boycott became effective, it is highly probable that the American government would at once devote all its effort to breaking the boycott—would try, in other words, to keep the Filipinos from demanding that which it has already promised them. And in the excitement the promise of independence might be forgotten for another two decades.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.)

It must have been about eight o'clock when wee Duncy said, "I'd like to rock myself to sleep. I'm all tired out. What say we go to bed?"

"Then, when we wake up in the morn, we'll all feel bright and not forlorn. If anyone will join me, I will rest my weary head."

"Why do you wait for us?" inquired Scouty. "You can do what ever you want to do but I think I will sit up a while. I wish we had more light."

The candleman replied, "Well, lad, to make more light I will be glad. And then I'll tell a story ere we turn in for the night."

And then he dragged a candle out, which made the Tinkies loudly shout, "Oh, my, but it is a big one. Light it now. We'll gather around."

The candle soon was blazing very bright and it was quite a pretty sight. They stood it in a candleholder, where it was safe and sound.

"On with the new story," Windy cried. They gathered by the old man's side, and listened very closely as he started.

"It was many years ago," said he, "when I was careless as could be. I dropped a great big candle while enjoying a walk."

"It was night and when I found it was gone, I wondered should I wait till dawn to try and find my candle. Then a queer thing happened."

"A lightning bug was flying all around and as it darted toward the ground it accidentally landed on my missing candle stick."

The bug then lit its little light and what I saw was quite a sight. The light flamed on the candle till the wick began to burn.

"My long-lost candle thus was found, right near at hand and safe and sound. I thanked the little bug for doing me a friendly turn."

Daily Health Talk

"Temporary structure is a fundamental principle of all building operations. Without scaffolding, derrick bases, wheelbarrow runways and skeleton elevators, the modern buildings could not come into being. Nature, on the same plan, provides for baby teeth, which thus supply the masticating instruments required until such a time as the growing jaw becomes sufficiently large to permit the eruption of the permanent set. The unerring wisdom of nature possesses no better example than this provision," said Dr. L. W. Nether, Supt. of the State Health Department's Dental section, recently.

"But, like everything else in nature's realm, there are decided limitations to its efforts — and from these points the individual, or the individual's representative if the former is too young to direct matters, must assume some responsibility if the best results are to be obtained."

"At first blush it would seem (and actually does seem to thousands of parents) to be a waste of effort to pay any attention to the baby teeth. Since the child will lose the entire twenty between the ages of six and twelve years, why bother? is the usual question. The answer is very definite.

"When the first tooth appears, usually between the fourth and ninth month, the parents' obligation begins. This tooth and the succeeding ones should be rubbed daily with a soft cloth soaked in lime water. With increasing age a brush may be substituted. And finally the child should be taught the proper use of a tooth brush, and to use it daily. Moreover, during the existence of the temporary teeth the dentist should examine the mouth several times each year. It is quite as essential to fill cavities that may be found in them as to fill those in the permanent ones.

"Proper nourishment requires proper mastication. Impaired teeth, small or large, can not perform this function efficiently. Again, abscessed teeth not only are likely to distribute poisons throughout the young system—a very serious situation, but in causing pain produce real illness with all its devaluing effects."

"It thus should appear that to temporize with the first teeth is to run a greater risk than is reasonably justified. Teeth, temporary or permanent, demand personal and professional attention. See that they get it."

PREVENTING T. B.—I

This year we celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the discovery of the tuberculosis germ. It was in 1882 that Robert Koch revealed the cause of the white plague.

In the intervening years we have made much progress in the control of tuberculosis, a substantial amount in its treatment and some progress in its prevention.

We are, however, as yet without a remedy for this still widely prevalent disease.

This fact merits strong emphasis for, from time to time, charlatans, quacks and over-eager scientists startle the world with grossly premature announcements of a vaccine or serum cure for tuberculosis.

To conquer a disease it is not

Soviet Dictator Still Man of Hour and "Big Boss" Of Communists

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of two articles about the tenth anniversary of Joseph Stalin's election as general secretary of the Communist party, resulting in his accession to the control of the Soviet Union.

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA European Manager

London—April 2 is a red-letter day in the "Red History" of Russia. It is the 10th anniversary of the election of Joseph Stalin as a general secretary of the Communist party.

The celebration is of international significance for three reasons.

First, Stalin is by all odds the most powerful dictator in the world today—in fact, the most powerful the world has seen in recent times. The anniversary also finds him deeply entrenched and more powerful than ever.

Second, the man Stalin himself who is one of the most fascinating and interesting figures in history.

Third—and perhaps the most important one—it marks the near completion of the so-called five-year plan. The anniversary also creates speculation as to the success of this plan.

Clasp Is Still Of Iron

As to Stalin, he still rules Russia with an iron clasp despite the claim of his former colleague and present bitter foe, Leon Trotsky, that Stalin's rule at Moscow is crumbling. The exiled Trotsky from his island retreat at Principo, Turkey, in a recent statement said Stalin's action in making his exile perpetual was a confession that his power was waning.

Trotsky believes his ideas, which are barred but manage to be smuggled into Russia, are gaining and are doing much to weaken the personal position of the party secretary.

Neither Stalin's name nor his position is quite what it seems to be.

When he was chosen secretary of the party in 1922, he was a long way from being ruler of Russia. He was one of the influential members of the Communist party but there were others who ranked far above him. Secretary general as a name doesn't signify any particular influence.

The name, also, isn't exactly genuine.

Stalin — he's 53 — was born Josef Wissarionowitch Dzhugashvili. He adopted the name Stalin after he had grown to manhood and was rising to power. His always necessary to find a remedy for it.

Leprosy was largely conquered in Europe by the invocation of a strict quarantine and in the United States we have effectively conquered typhoid by adequate control of sewage disposal and the sanitary control of our water supply.

Typhoid vaccination also has helped in eliminating typhoid as a major health problem.

None of these measures, however, in any case constituted a remedy or a cure for typhoid.

In recent years progress has been made in the prevention of tuberculosis.

Our study of the nature of the tuberculosis germ and the manner in which it produces disease has revealed to us the fact that before tuberculosis appears in its adult form, where the lungs become involved in a destructive ulcerative process there is a preliminary non-active stage.

This has been designated as the childhood type of tuberculosis.

In this stage of the disease the tuberculosis germ has invaded the body and has set up a local reaction at the place where it landed, principally in the lymph glands around the roots of the lung.

TEN YEARS OF STALIN!

Ruthless to his enemies . . . master politician to his followers . . . kindly father to his family . . . the rugged Joseph Stalin rules Russia with that native shrewdness that finds him deeply entrenched on the 10th anniversary of his election as general secretary of the Communist party.

peatedly ran afoul of the law. Several times he was arrested and sent to Siberia only to escape and resume his revolutionary activities.

Priesthood Not His Liking

His father was a cobbler and his mother had ambitions that he should become a priest. So he was sent to a seminary—doubtless by the dint of much self-sacrifice on the part of his parents. But Stalin wasn't destined to be a priest.

In a short time, the student was expelled for being insubordinate and for showing too much interest in radical movements. Among these movements was the collection—often by force—of money for carry-on revolutionary activities. Stalin was one of the collectors.

In this movement, the future ruler of Russia learned his first lessons in Communism. He reside of the salient formed in the Allied lines for a blow at Amiens and the Channel ports.

French and the British troops, weary from over ten days of terrific combat took advantage of the slight lull in operations to fortify and improve their positions.

German attacks on Griveshew were repulsed by the French and English troops.

Several new French divisions were within the battle zone and much of the strain on Allied positions had been relieved.

British troops in Palestine continued their offensive and announced the capture of villages near Aleppo. Turkish resistance was reported weakening.

The liner Celtic was torpedoed off the Irish coast, but was able to make port successfully.

Paris was bombarded by the long-range German gun. Casualties were not announced.

"Ward" Politics Played Part In Rise

Stalin also was learning politics. He was as practical as he was hard-working. All these years he was building quietly and effectively a political machine that was destined to give him the reins of government.

When the revolution broke, he was among the leaders although his position in the government was not important. Yet he had been called for service by no less persons than Nicolai Lenin and Trotsky.

Then Lenin died. Stalin was elevated to be general secretary of the party. After his election, Stalin began to increase his power. His influence was spread through his carefully organized machine. He demonstrated that he knew as much about ward politics as any Tammany leader. And he placed his men in key positions while such men as Trotsky, Kamenef and Rykoff seemingly held the authority.

Trotsky on "the Out"

Soon Trotsky and his friends found out that Stalin could outvote them every time and his accession as ruler of the Soviet was only a matter of time. At first, Stalin silenced his foes. Then he exiled Trotsky. His position was now secure. Today he has no opposition and through a strictly disciplined organization, he wields more power than the czar of Russia did in his palmy days.

Perhaps the most valuable asset Stalin has is his personality. He lives a quiet Spartan life, enriched by his chemistry-studying wife, and surrounded by his sturdy 11-year-old son and his small daughter who likes to hear her father tell stories.

He can be ruthless and is. But to close friends, he talks easily, smiles almost to the point of a grin and works hard. He likes to read the works of Lenin and does his rough best with native shrewdness to guide the party, which he uses as his mouthpiece in carrying out orders and wishes.

Biggest Boss on Earth

As the anniversary approaches, Stalin is being extolled. In fact he is being worshipped as a hero, with elaborate eulogies being heaped upon him.

So great has been this admiration that the word "vozhd" is being coupled with his name. That was the word reserved for Lenin. It means leader if an English equivalent can be found. It suggests the Italian word "duce" as applied to Mussolini. But Stalin is more than "Il Duce." He's Stalin, the biggest boss on earth.

Two Bill-Raisers Taken In Custody

Springfield, Ill., March 31—(AP)—Chief Walter L. Moody of the State Highway Police is enroute to Springfield with two prisoners in custody, and with specimens of United States currency they confess they raised from $2 to $10.

Eleven of the mutilated bills were found upon the prisoners when they were arrested last night at Patterson, in Green county, after they had passed one of the bills in Edward Cumby's store, at Glasgow, Scott county. Four of the raised bills were destroyed by the prisoners before police had completed searching them.

Edward Cumby, Glasgow merchant, is accredited by state police with the information that led to the arrest of the two-bill-raisers. The two men entered his store, made a purchase, and gave him a bill that he accepted as a $10 bill.

A Guess That Has Cost $185,000,000

Some bad guessing in 1913 has since cost the people of the United States approximately $185,000,000. The guessing was embodied in the Railway Valuation Act of that year.

The principal guesses were: (1) the railroads could be valued in two years; (2) the total cost would be less than $3,000,000; (3) the railroads would be shown to be greatly over-capitalized; (4) the government would be enabled to regulate rates so as to yield the railroads a fair return; (5) the users of transportation would save around $1,000,000 a day.

Here are the corresponding facts: (1) the valuation, in progress eighteen years, is still incomplete; (2) the cost to the taxpayers has been more than $40,000,000 and to the railroads—and, through them, to their patrons—more than $145,000,000; (3) the value of the railroads has been proved to be substantially greater than their capitalization; (4) the railroads have not been allowed to earn a fair return; (5) no public saving has resulted.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

GOOD THOUGHTS

Politeness is the blossom of our humanity; whoever is not sufficiently polite, is not sufficiently humane.

Joubert

Life is made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles and kindness and small obligations, given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart, and secure comfort.

—Sir Humphrey Davy

The one secret of politeness is to love. Love cannot behave itself unseemly. You can put the most untutored persons into the highest society, and if they have a reservoir of love in their heart, they will not behave themselves unseemly. They simply cannot do it.

—Henry Drummond

Jesus went about his Father's business, healing and teaching, and in all his public ministry he lost no opportunity to be kind. As the understanding of God as divine Love increases, our thoughts and lives become animated by the infinite kindness of God.

—The Christian Science Monitor

Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself; is not puffed up. Doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not the glory, is not easily provoked, thinketh not evil.

TODAY in SPORTS

BASEBALL WILL HAVE TO PEP UP TO MAKE PROFIT

Club Owners Face Unusual Condition Coming Season

New York, April 1.—(AP)—Faced with ten per cent taxation on their tickets and the risk of uncertain gate receipts, major league baseball clubs will need to play their drawing cards skillfully this season to keep from dipping any further in the red ink.

Only seven of the sixteen American and National League organizations showed a profit at the close of 1931. The lopsided character of the two pennant races was largely responsible for the big slump in gate receipts but the national game, like every other sport, has felt the pinch of the prevailing hard times.

Player salaries have been reduced and the player limit cut to about $750,000, but it will take additional measures to prevent further financial embarrassment for the magnates.

John McGraw, blaming the umpires for too much pacifism, believes the fans will turn out to see the teams exhibit the scrappy spirit characteristic of McGraw's own playing days.

For example, one of the club owners told me in Florida, "So long as the fans like it and will pay to see it, we will not object to clowning or a real show of aggressiveness by the players, providing of course they don't let it interfere with giving their best efforts on the field. I believe the fans like colorful acting in any sport."

Besides their drawing power as world champions, the Cardinals are well fixed for providing a good show with players such as Pepper Martin and Dizzy Dean. Martin was the big attraction of the grapefruit circuit this spring and already has shown flashes of the speed and hitting that made him the hero of the 1931 world series. Dean, if he gets away to a good start will help the clubs cash in on his ball-happy.

The Yankees, besides the perennial ace of all drawing cards—Babe Ruth—have a widely heralded young star in Frank Crosetti to attract the folks in the Bronx. Across the bridge, Brooklyn figures Hack Wilson's comeback attempt will draw enough at the gate to offset at least his purchase price—$40,000.

The Boston Braves will allow Art Shires to do all the broadcasting he desires so long as he plays a satisfactory first base. No doubt, too, the spirit of the times will persuade Al Schacht and Nick Altrock to patch up their differences and again give the fans as well as the Washington club, the benefit of their side-show stuff.

BAD DECISION HANDS DEFEAT TO M'REYNOLDS

LaSalle Crowd Boomed Referee Of Bout Last Evening

Elwood "Kid" McReynolds, Dixon welterweight boxer, made another try for the championship title in his division before a large crowd of boxing fans at La Salle last evening but despite his excellent showing against his opponent, Johnny Katkus of Ladd, lost the decision at the close of the hard fought match. A large delegation of local fans accompanied the Dixon aspirant and witnessed the battle.

McReynolds opened the first round with a left to his opponent's face. This blow served to awaken the Ladd battler to the fact that the Dixonite was much faster than his previous meeting two nights before. Katkus retaliated with two lefts to the body. Mac landed two lefts to his opponent's face, both taking effect. The remainder of the round was ineffective, both landing lefts and rights to the body and head.

McReynolds opened with a left to the face in the beginning of the second round. Katkus took a count of three from the effects of this opening blow and appeared groggy. Both traded blows with clinches intermingled. Katkus hanging to the Dixon boxer and the crowd calling for a knockout blow.

In the third and final round, the Ladd battler began with a left to McReynolds's body and followed with a left to the face before the Dixonite got under way. Mac traded a stinging left to Katkus' face and both went into a clinch which was quickly broken up. Two more blows to the Ladd boxer's face were delivered by Mac and the bout closed with both boxers clinching, the judges awarding the decision to Katkus. The decision was received with hoots and hisses from the crowd.

RACKETS TAKING FUNDS FROM U. S. OLYMPIC BOARD

Committee Warns Fans To Be Sure Where Money Goes

Chicago, April 1.—(AP)—If you are planning to help your Uncle Sam's Olympic teams in a financial way, first look out for the racketeers.

Avery Brundage, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of America, and president of the American Olympic committee, has rounded up information showing that the quick money boys already are at work, and have intercepted many thousands of dollars meant for the Olympic fund. He is sending out warning to authorized members of the huge Olympic machine, to head off the racketeers before it becomes too late to steer the money into its proper channel.

There is nothing new in the racket employed. The enterprising ones are selling automobile tire covers, stickers for envelopes, cigarette lighters and a variety of other knickknacks, bearing some Olympic mention. Stamps are printed for 10 cents a hundred and have been sold for a dollar, and the profit on other items has been as large.

The Olympic committee learned of the racket when checks made out to the "Olympic Committee," reached Brundage's office. The salesman had endorsed the check, pocketed the money and moved out of the neighborhood. Brundage still has the checks.

"We need not less than $300,000 to equip and care for our athletes and probably twice that amount has been gathered up by the racketeers. Money is coming in very slowly, and contributors must be certain their donations are reaching the Olympic committee," Mr. Brundage said.

"It will cost just as much to care for our athletes at Los Angeles next summer, as it did to send our team to Amsterdam in 1928. We chartered a ship then, and got rates. This year, however, the athletes must be moved from all over the country by rail, and many will travel part of the distance alone. And we can't spare any money to racketeers."

In seeking money for its own team, the Olympic committee encounters competition right at its home.

German-Americans, Polish-Americans, Swedish and Finnish-Americans and other nationalities whose homelands will send teams to the Olympiad, are soliciting funds to make it possible for them to compete at Los Angeles, which will mean that about $2,000,000 must be raised.

SNEEZE BROKE

Portland, Ore.—(UP)—Police Sergeant William Drapeau was broadcasting reports to police prowl cars over the short wave radio set. He sneezed a lusty sneeze. Mrs. Cliff Watson, wife of a radio engineer, was listening in. The sneeze crashed into the Watson set and blew out two tubes.

Those were some of the oddities in two City League basketball games last night in which proposed rule changes to speed up the game were given a try-out.

One game was played under the penalty box system borrowed from hockey. Technical fouls drew half-minute penalties and personal fouls, committed on players in the act of shooting were penalized by two minutes on the bench.

Twice a team was left with only one man on the floor. One on occasion a single basket was made against the lone defender. On the other, two baskets were scored.

In the other game, fouls during each period were cancelled, the difference being turned into free throws at the conclusion. In the first half, there was a net of one free throw; in the second, six.

The scoring was normal and fans and players agreed that abolition of free throws during playing time speeded up the game.

HARRIDGE SEES GREAT RACE IN JUNIOR LEAGUE

Says Athletics Will Not Have Runaway Coming Season

Chicago, April 1.—(AP)—The ghost of Pepper Martin and the St. Louis Cardinals promises to haunt Connie Mack's Athletics during the 1932 pennant chase in the American League.

President William Harridge of the American League, back today from his tour of the southern training camps, reported that almost every team in the circuit has adopted the Cardinal method of manufacturing runs which proved so valuable in the baseball classic last fall. That system consists of speed and daring base running. There is one hitch, however, President Harridge says, and that is: the Athletics are doing the same thing.

The New York Yankees, under the leadership of "Marse Joe" McCarthy, Washington, Cleveland and Chicago appear to be the most improved clubs in the league, in the opinion of Harridge. No other club in the League, he says, has shown so much improvement as the Yankees. He believes they should be equal contenders with the Athletics in the scramble for the championship.

Yanks Improved
"There are many reasons for this," President Harridge said. "The principal one, however, is that the pitching staff is greatly improved. It was poor pitching that caused New York to finish a poor second in 1931. The Athletics, in my opinion, will not make a runaway race of the championship, as they did a year ago. I look for a much closer and more interesting struggle this year. We have three strong clubs in the east in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, and I look for Cleveland and Chicago to furnish spirited opposition in the west."

"There seems to be no way to muffle those Cleveland bats. There is great power in that club and Billy Evans assures me that pitching department has been strengthened, while the holes in the infield have been plugged through the improvement of Ed Mudgett at shortstop."

A's Will Face Fight
The Cardinal system of aggressive, fighting play, found favor with every American League manager with whom President Harridge came in contact. The managers, he said, are paying more attention to base running than they have for several years, and they assured him that Philadelphia will have to fight to the limit for every victory.

Although President Harridge did not visit the camps of the White Sox, Boston or Detroit, he obtained excellent reports on the White Sox. The team, he said, displays great improvement in spirit and morale under the leadership of Lew Fonseca, who has already shown himself to be a capable leader. The White Sox, Harridge says, have one of the best pitching staves in the country, a greatly improved infield, and he will be greatly surprised if they do not improve on their position of last year.

Hooks and Slides

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER
This is to let you have, at bargain prices, this baseball observer's unsolicited opinion of how the teams in the National League will come steaming down the stretch to the pay-off window in late September. And here it is:

1. Burleigh Grimes.
2. New York Giants.
3. St. Louis Cards.
4. Brooklyn Whatnots.
5. Cincinnati Reds.
6. Pittsburgh Pirates.
7. Phillies.
8. (I hate to say it, Bill.)

THE VALUE OF GRIMES—
In a three-horse race, between the Cubs, Cardinals and Giants, such as this pennant campaign of 1932 promises to be, the value of Grimes cannot be estimated in the worth alone of the victories he himself will win.

As I see it, when the Cubs got Grimes in exchange for a $40,000 ball player—Hack Wilson—and a young pitcher Bud Teachout, they acquired the fighting edge that will determine the winner of the National League pennant.

The Cubs have problems, to be sure, in the infield and outfield, (and what National League team hasn't?) that might lead most of the baseball handicappers to play safe and select the Cardinals to repeat. But when the Cardinals let Grimes get away, they gave the Cubs exactly the incentive of spirit the Chicago club lacked last year—not to mention the 17 or 18 wins old Burleigh is ready to fling out of his resourceful arm this season.

NAME FOUR BETTER—
If pitching is 80 per cent of a ball club, the Cubs are in. In old Grimes, Root, Bush and Malone, the Cubs have what looks to be the best four in the league. Added to these starters are Lon Warneke, Bob Smith, Jack May and Dutch Henry.

In Herman at second base and the sensational young Stanley Hack at third, it may be said the Horshby is taking a gamble. But you will find the other National League contenders gambling, too, with Grimes' arm, and in his outfield, with new men. The Cardinals are gambling on some young pitchers.

The Cubs haven't the best outfield in the league perhaps. But they have one of the best outfielders in the business in Cuyler, and for the other spots there are Riggs Stephenson (he'll hit), Lance Richbourg, Vin Barton, Dan Taylor, John Moore and Marvin Gudat to pick from. From this point, Stevie looks to be the clean-up hitter.

Technically, other clubs in the league may have advantages at this or that point in the infield or outfield. But the Cubs have in Woody English, at short, as fine a player as there is in baseball, and with English beside them, would it not be perfectly natural for Hack and Herman to gain the confidence and skill they will need to carry them through their first year in the major leagues? With Grimm at first base, and Horshby Harry Taylor and Lester Bell ready for reserve duty, the Cubs haven't the worst group of infielders you could name, at that.

SPIRIT OF A CHAMPION—
The difference between the Cubs Cards and Giants, as I see it, will be the battling spirit of old Burleigh. It is contagious. The presence of Grimes around a club takes years off the old men's lives. It adds steadying confidence to the young fellows. Grimes is every inch a champion, and a team that this man serves becomes a team that will not be beaten.

That is why I believe the Cards will slip down below the Giants this year—because there is no unconquerable Grimes to hold up the team in its hour of need.

John McGraw writes that the 10 major league clubs are nearing season form. Quite a sensational announcement.

A story from Los Angeles says Jess Willard is coming back. We wonder where?

The White Sox won a game in the south the other day. Such extravaganza!

Leon See, manager of Primo Carnera, was suspended by the National Boxing Association after a $1500 check he gave the commission bounced back. Monsieur See has been learning the customs of American boxing managers rapidly.

The Boston Braves ought to be glad when the season opens. They won't have to play the Yankees again for a whole year.

Do You Remember?

One Year Ago Today—Les Canadiens of Montreal, world professional hockey champions, defeated the Boston Bruins 3 to 2 in an overtime period to gain the finals of the Stanley Cup series against the Chicago Blackhawks.

Five Years Ago Today—Paolino Uzcudum, Basque heavyweight, beat Tom Heeney, New Zealand Irishman, in 10 rounds before 15,000 persons at Madison Square Garden in the heavyweight elimination tournament. The Spaniard had Heeney on the floor in the first round.

Ten Years Ago Today—Francis T. Hunter scored a surprising four-set victory over Frank T. Anderson, defending champion, to win the national indoor tennis singles championship. Scores of the match were 6-4, 1-6, 7-5 and 6-2.

A Stockholm engineer has developed a new aerial smoke screen.

The ex-champion intends to do some intensive mountain climbing at a camp near Reno Nev., to strengthen his legs and build up his stamina in anticipation of heavy fighting this summer.

He probably will fight Primo Carnera and if his avowed hopes are realized, with Max Schmeling for the title.

BIGGEST CROWD OF WEEK HEARS GRADY CANTRELL

Evangelistic Drive Gains Momentum In Ev- ery Service

The largest crowd yet in attendance at the Cantrell tabernacle meetings which opened last Sunday night to hear Evangelist Grady Cantrell preach upon "The Power of the Holy Spirit."

"Be not drunk with wine, but be filled with the Holy Spirit," quoted the evangelist in opening his soul-stirring sermon last night. "For a long time I thought that text was wrong. I couldn't understand why Paul would contrast the Holy Spirit's power with being drunk. But now I understand. Why do men get drunk? Not because booze is good. Not at all. It isn't. You have to learn to like it. Even a hog won't drink beer. And men who drink whiskey have to have a chaser to take the taste out of their mouths. There are just two reasons why men get drunk: First they want to get away from self; secondly, they want to get elated and feel courageous. So they take the artificial route which finally destroys them. But the Holy Spirit will do more for you than booze. He will lift you out of self, give you courage. His fruits are love, joy and peace. The Holy Spirit is the basis of real fun and good feeling."

A delegation from East Moline, led by Rev. G. W. Gant, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, fifty strong, were present, seated on the platform and the front section of the tabernacle. The Cantrell party held a successful tabernacle campaign at East Moline last spring. Rev. Gant led in the opening prayer.

Choir Helps Service
The large choir section was almost filled and the great chorus choir led in an inspiring song service which lasted thirty minutes. Mr. Harris and them in singing some Negro spirituals. Everybody enjoyed "I Ain't Goin' to Grieve My Lord Any More." One and perhaps two grand pianos will be in place for tonight's service and Dick Choate and Ray Harris promise a great musical program. Mr. Choate will play a xylophone solo as a prelude to tonight's service.

The nursery built at the northeast corner of the tabernacle for the babies is becoming a most popular place. Mrs. Louis Leydig and her committee are in charge of the babies and have all sorts of toys and games to amuse the little folks while the mothers enjoy the services. She reported thirty-one babies at the nursery last night.

There will be two services for everybody at the tabernacle Sunday. There will be no morning service, but at 2:30 Rev. Cantrell will preach upon Divine Healing. There will be a great mass meeting at 7:30 when it is expected the large tabernacle will be crowded to capacity.

The evangelist has announced his sermon for tonight, as "Do You Believe in Revivals?" Friday night, he announced, "I will pay my respects to all these folks that do not believe in mass-revivals or any other kind. We are going to put out our washing right before you all—down to the sock."

Those who think that religion is to be displayed by a long face and a solemn demeanor got a new slant on the matter from last night's sermon. Real joy, contentment and a happy life were shown to depend on one's attitude to God.

Mr. Cantrell said in part: "Let's wake up and get a little enthusiasm, why go around half dead when the undertaker will bury you for a hundred bucks. Some people have been in cold storage so long they've frozen out to death trying to thaw 'em out. Let's get hot for God, nobody wants to go into a cold room till the fire is started, that's the way with a revival. Let's get up steam. Why a lot of you will go to a football game and yell your loud heads off, you'll shout like a Comanche Indian but at church you're as cold as a dog's nose."

The Joy of Religion
God wants you to be happy, some people are so long faced their chin drags in the mud, they look like an owl on a tombstone. In Matt. 6:18 Jesus says to shine your shoes, comb your hair, wash your face. He don't want you to have a "sad countenance." There is no use having religion if you are going to give the Devil all the benefit.

"When one of those long faced guys knocks at the Pearly Gates I've often imagined Peter saying: 'Well, I wonder what he's lost.' Paul said 'I exhort you to be of good CHEER' the angel cried 'Behold I bring you tidings of great JOY.' Many a person has been saved by a smile. Paul and Silas knocked the Devil out of the Philippian Jail with a song and a smile."

Wives and Husbands
Let's not only have enthusiasm at church and in business but at home. Ladies, if you want to wear diamonds, cast an admiring look at your "old man," everybody needs encouragement when your side-kick comes home with the dew of prosperity on his brow and his pants baggy at the knees that spell prosperity for you, don't meet him at the door saying as you powder your face and fizzle your hair, "I met Freddy Hicks up town, his hair was very slick, he looked so nice, creased pants and everything, why can't you look like that." Oh, don't quench his spirit like that, but greet him with a kiss and tell the truth. Say, "I saw Freddy Hicks, the big bum, he never earned a dollar in his life. Gee, I'm glad the Lord never tied me up with him. He looks like a false alarm beside you." Say the "old man" will swell up like a poisoned pup;

A tangled skein of clues, all rooted in the underworld, has led the search for Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., to the sea. Above is an artist's sketch of the latest developments, starting when an unidentified prisoner was taken from the tombs, New York City's prison, to confer with Colonel it will make him feel so good, he will go out and get a raise.

And say, you old "shiekies" I want to talk to you. Be enthusiastic about your wife; she's as pretty as Alice of Mary. Don't look at her like she was a piece of furniture. It would spoil a mule to treat 'em like some of you do your wife, if you'd treat a wailer half as mean you wouldn't have any teeth left. Tell her you love her now and then, even if it does scare her a little at first, she will get used to it and like it! Don't wait until you're a hundred miles from home and send it back on a penny post-card. You can't expect your wife to act like an angel when you treat her like the devil.

There's many a little straight nosed, curly haired woman that helped some big lummas to fame. I'm thankful the Lord made one apiece. If you haven't got yours it's not her fault. When you get her, treat her like one of the family; you don't give her money then wonder why she don't look as nice as the other girls. Be as enthusiastic after she becomes your wife as when she was your sweet heart. Nearly all unhappy marriages are the result of putting the best fruit at the top of the barrel.

Why do we celebrate the Fourth of July, toot horns, shoot fire-crackers, "Red Lemonade." It is the birth of a Nation and when we quench the spirit of '76 we will cease to be a nation. When we quench the Spirit of God we will cease to be a church.

Religious Nuts
Don't put your religion on ice. When you want a man to vote for you or sell him something, you pat his dog on the head, brag on the family, tickle his kid under the chin, and hand him a cigar but when you want to invite him to Christ you hire someone to pull on a piece of bell rope.

There are too many people afraid that somebody's going to call 'em a "Religious Nut." Well I'm going to hit on all six for the Lord and if they want to call me a "Religious Nut" all right but I'm in good company. Look at Archimedes. He was the bird that said, "I'll pry up the Universe." They called him a nut, but if it had not been for Archie the nut, we could not hoist a derrick today.

Sir Isaac Newton discovered the law of gravity and they called him a nut, but if it hadn't been for the nut, we might have never known what made the apple fall. Jimmy Watt discovered the power of steam and they called him a nut, but if it hadn't been for Jimmy the nut, we wouldn't have any depots or railroad tracks.

They called Ford a nut, but Henry the nut took two old wheels, put 'em on a can, called it a Ford and the thing ran.

Those fellows were big nuts, coconuts, I'm just a little peanut, but I'm not ashamed to be a nut for God.

Advertise for Jesus
Let us advertise for Jesus. A man gets up in the morning, pulls on his advertised B. V. Ds., shaves with his advertised Gillette, puts on his advertised Hart Shaffner and Marx goes to work in his advertised Ford, then tries to advertise Eternal Life with stained glass windows and a belfry.

We can't dead beat our way into the kingdom. Too many people are as quiet as a clam in a graveyard about religion. Jesus says Luke 12:8, "He that confesses me before man, that's the guy He's proud of. Broadcast Jesus a little, don't spend all of your time listening in the belfry."

Pure Enthusiasm
If you have a little enthusiasm you can do anything. Napoleon was "nobody" yet he vaulted to the throne of France, he rose through sheer enthusiasm. If he'd quench this he would have been blacking boots in some barber shop.

Alexander the Great was a mere "kid" yet he conquered the world and looked for more worlds to conquer, if he had quench the spirit of enthusiasm he'd been "racking balls" in some pool hall.

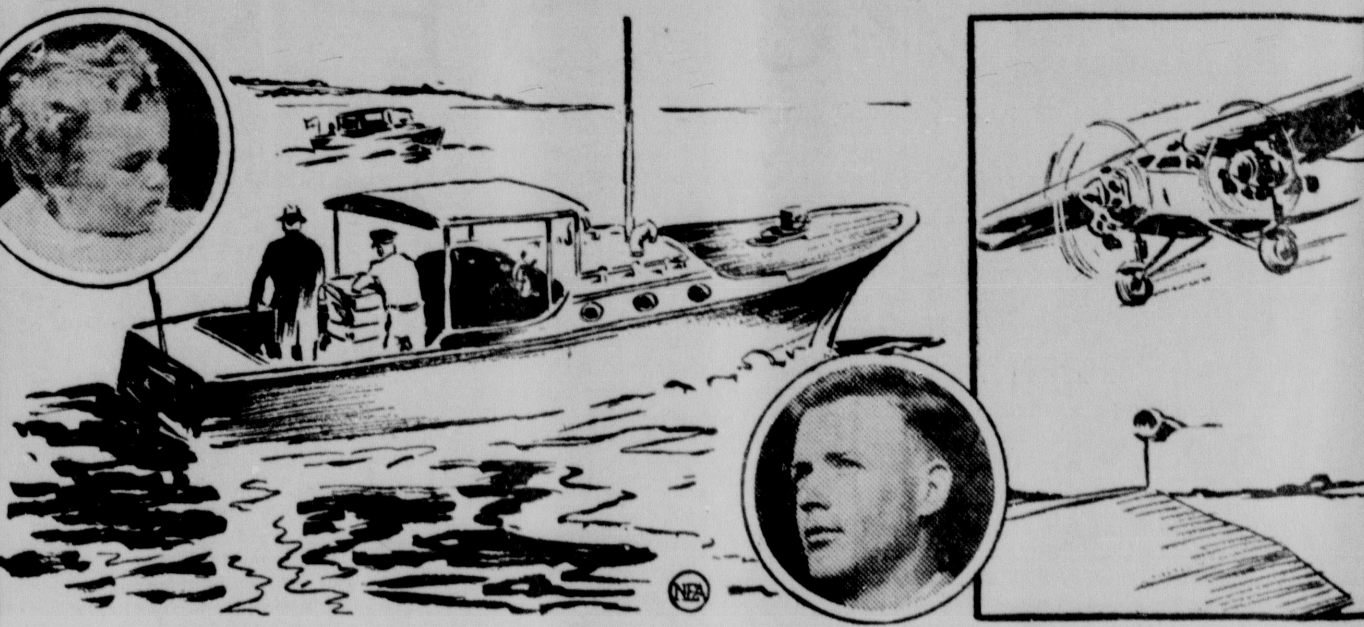

"Old Caesar was a 'prodigal' yet he rose until he had the world in his hands, but if he had quench that spirit he would have been setting pins in some bowling alley."

Think what you could do. Jesus blazed the trail, and God to back you up. Paul says, "I can do all things through Christ Jesus."

Enthusiasm has won the wars of the world. Let's let it win our war on Hell. When Packington the British general sent word to Jackson that he expected to eat breakfast in New Orleans, the bottle scarred old warrior sent this message: "If you do you'll eat dinner in Hell."

Von Thomp sailed the British Channel with a broom tied to his mast, signifying his purpose of sweeping his hated enemy from the sea. Enthusiasm When Nelson's lieutenant called his attention to signal for retreat by the

HERE'S SEQUENCE OF EVENTS IN SEA HUNT FOR LINDERGH BABY

Lindbergh at Hopewell. The conference was negotiated by Morris Rossner, undercover man, and, although there apparently were no immediate results, it was noticeable that even the searchers thereafter had turned seawards. A week later an unnamed New boat captain is reported to have commander in chief, that battered old hero grabbed the spyglass with his only hand, clapped it to his blind eye, exclaiming, "I can see no signal!" He won the day. Enthusiasm. In his last great fight he inspired his men with these memorable words, "England expects every man to do his duty." Enthusiasm, and God will have nothing less.

Look at our own "Farragut." As the federal ships sailed towards Mobile Point, Fort Morgan, with her shot and shell was making it a living flame. As the Tecumseh exploded and sank, the Brooklyn hesitated among those awful torpedoes, and began to back. Farragut crawled into the main port of the Hartford, and shouted, "What's wrong?" "Torpedoes," was the answer. "Damn the torpedoes," cried Farragut. "Four bells, Captain Drayton, full speed ahead." The day was won. Enthusiasm.

Robert Bruce
History tells us as Robert Bruce the undefeated champion of Scotland lay dying, he turned to his true and trusted friend, the Earl of Douglas, and requested that he would deposit his heart in the sepulchre of his Savior at Jerusalem.

So, when he died, his friend removed his heart and placed it in a jeweled casket. Then with his brave band of men started to fulfill the dying request of his beloved friend.

On their way they were attacked by a large number of Moors. They hastily threw up a breastwork, but the enemy outnumbered them and they were threatened with defeat, but the superior numbers of the enemy failed to defeat their enthusiasm. When Robert Bruce had led them they had never known defeat, remembering this the Earl of Douglas seized the casket containing the heart of Robert Bruce and mounting a little hillock, waved it above his head and cried out as he hurled it into the opposing ranks, "Lead on, O heart of Bruce, lead on!"

They seized their swords and cut, and slashed their way to victory. "Tonight I take my old book. I wave it above my head and hurl it at the ranks of sin and cry out, 'Lead on, O Word of God, lead on, and we will follow you to the last ditch.'"

Buffalo, Cleveland Bowlers On Alleys
Detroit, April 1.—(AP)—Buffalo and Cleveland lineups will monopolize most of the 32 alleys in the American Bowling Congress tournament today, beginning a week-end assault which may change the situation among the team leaders in the national pin classic.

Buffalo is sending 35 teams into action, including the well known Caruana five, captained by Frank Caruana, one of the most colorful figures in the game. The diminutive Italian has been rated for many years as one of the best match bowlers of the country. In '24 he established a record that has never been equalled when he scored two consecutive 300 games in league competition.

The ten leaders in all four events remained unchanged yesterday.

Fuller Favored To Defeat Berg
New York, Apr. 1.—(AP)—Sentiment may be with Jack (Kid) Berg in his ten round bout with Sammy Fuller of Boston in Madison Square Garden tonight but hard cash favors the New England youngster.

Odds as high as 2 to 1 have been quoted that Fuller will outpoint the British veteran and perhaps earn a shot at Tony Canzoneri's lightweight championship.

Two years ago there was no lightweight in the business harder to beat than Berg. But last year he twice was beaten by Canzoneri in title bouts, once or a knockout in Chicago and again in New York on a decision.

Fuller, in his last two matches here, outpointed Ray Miller of Chicago and knocked out Billy Wallace of Cleveland.

200 In Uniform At Notre Dame Field
South Bend, Ind., April 1.—(UP)—With more than 200 candidates in uniform, Notre Dame's spring football practice started in earnest today. The first day of practice yesterday, which coincided with the death of Knute Rockne a year ago, was devoted largely to cameramen and photographers.

Mass was observed at the church from which Rockne was buried and later in the day the Monogram Club visited the famous coach's grave and placed a wreath on it. Norvold Hoffman, president of the club, led the 70 members in a short prayer.

ALL BITUMINOUS COAL MINES OF COUNTRY CLOSE

Disagreements In New Wage Scales Bring About Idleness

Chicago, April 1.—(AP)—America's unionized bituminous coal belt was a land of idleness today. From Illinois east to the West Virginia Panhandle, hundreds of mine tripples were closed; approximately 75,000 members of the United Mine Workers were without work. And there was no indication of when operations would resume.

Last midnight was the closing hour. In Illinois failure of miners and operators to agree on a new wage contract after four weeks of conferences, added between 43,000 and 46,000 diggers the jobless lists.

Four thousand more men were thrown out of work in a single situation in Indiana's deep shaft mines. The Indiana mine owners and laborers had adjourned their conference pending outcome of the Illinois meeting and neither group made any last-minute attempts to stall off the suspension.

In Illinois and Indiana the shut-down was neither a strike nor a lockout. There was no agreement to continue operations.

In both states, efforts were expected to be continued to effect compromises on contracts.

Strike In Panhandle
In Ohio and the West Virginia, a strike called by District 6 officials of the United Mine Workers went into effect at midnight—following the failure of operators and miners to settle wage differences.

Twenty-five thousand men joined the idle ranks in Ohio fields and several thousand were expected by union officials to answer the strike call in the West Virginia Panhandle.

Today was also a miner's holiday: Commemorating the signing 34 years ago of the first agreement with operators. This agreement included the eight-hour day and followed the first general strike of the union.

No Trouble Expected
No trouble was expected today in any of the fields. The only demonstration planned was in Bellaire, Ohio.

In Ohio picketing of mines was planned by union leaders. No word of such picketing was forthcoming from the mine union leaders in Indiana or Illinois. In Illinois the miners policy group notified operators that any mine could remain open and work under the old scale of from $5.95 to $10.07.

The Illinois-Indiana scales have been at the top of all fields. The Illinois miners sought an increase of the minimum daily wage to $7 and a six-hour day, five day week. The shorter week was necessary, the miners contended, to provide employment to all members of the union.

The operators maintained a scale to allow competition with the eastern fields was necessary to save the industry in Illinois.

Never Considered As Oregon's Coach
Eugene Ore., April 1.—(UP)—Ernie Nevers, the "greatest football player Pop Warner ever coached," today was added to the list of possible successors to Dr. Clarence W. Spears as head coach of Oregon University.

Bill Reinhardt, chief assistant to Dr. Spears, and Prince L. Callison, freshman coach, already are avowed candidates for the post Spears resigned to go to Wisconsin.

Nevers now is assistant to Warner at Stanford.

Suit Against Ace Hudkins Dismissed
Los Angeles, April 1.—(UP)—Suits for $160,000 against Ace Hudkins, prize fighter, alleging breach of promise, betrayal and battery, stood dismissed today.

Rhea Hill, entertainer, charged in her suit that Hudkins betrayed her under promise of marriage and had beaten her.

Hudkins denied any promise of marriage.

Stake Race Each Day At Arlington

Chicago, April 1.—(AP)—The Arlington Park Jockey Club today adopted a policy, without precedent in America, of staging a stake race daily for its 30 day meeting, June 27 to July 30.

President Otto W. Lehman said close to $700,000 in purses would be distributed. The 21 minor stakes will carry $55,000 in added money, while the nine major attractions, including the Arlington Classic, will carry $197,000 in added money. The Classic will have an estimated value in excess of $80,000 while the Futurity probably will gross $65,000.

The date for closing entries for the 21 stakes was set for June 1.

Youth, Despondent Over Studies, Dies

Chicago, Mar. 31.—(UP)—Julius Gualano, 22, shot and killed himself because he was despondent over his poor showing in his studies.

Gualano, son of a former Municipal Judge, was bickering with his sister. When told to cease, he drew a revolver from his pocket and killed himself.

BONUS PAYMENT DOOMED IF BILL REACHES SENATE

Upper House Of Congress Determined To Economize

Washington, April 1.—(AP)—The Senate, which will have the next and the last say on taxes, appropriations and bonus payments is on an economy rampage.

In the spirit now pervading this chamber, the appropriation bills are due for a drastic slash, some of the higher income taxes voted by the House are facing a paring down and the bonus bill is doomed to defeat. The Senate leaders believe this spirit will continue undiminished.

So far two of the annual supply bills have been sent back to the Appropriations committee for ten per cent reductions. All the other measures appropriating funds for next year's operating expenses of the government face the same treatment.

As a result of this unprecedented action, the Senate Appropriations committee is marking time on the other necessary appropriation bills. Department heads have been notified to give recommendations for further paring down. They have protested but the Senate means business.

It is no secret that the leaders of both parties have determined to apply the axe to the proposition about to face the House for legislation to authorize loans as payment in full to World War veterans upon their bonus insurance certificates. It is not a certainty that the House will approve this. There is more doubt that the Senate will.

But there is no doubt whatever among the Senate leaders that the veto threatened for this legislation by President Hoover, should it pass, will be sustained.

Influenza Strikes Macoupin Co. Home

Carlinville, Ill., April 1.—(UP)—Three residents of the Macoupin County Home were dead and forty others were reported under the care of a physician today as a result of an outbreak of influenza this week. The home has been placed under quarantine by Dr. J. B. Liston, county physician.

The disease became prevalent in the home, which has nearly 70 inmates a few days ago.

Dr. Liston is the only physician caring for the patients.

LONE DRY STATE OF KANSAS NEAR GIVING MAJORITY

Forty States And D. of C. Voting Over 3 To 2 Wet

The only state that has had a dry majority, Kansas, comes within a fractional percentage of voting wet in the seventh weekly tabulation of The Literary Digest's prohibition poll as over 500,000 additional ballots are added to the nation wide tally, published in tomorrow's issue of the magazine.

The dry percentage of the Kansas vote has been reduced from 53.34 last week to 50.07 this week. Throughout the country as a whole the dry vote shows a sixth consecutive gain, rising from 15.85 per cent of the total vote of the first week's returns to 25.10 per cent last week and 25.75 per cent of the current tabulation.

Forty of the forty-eight states are voting three to two wet in the present report. Of these states nine are voting more than three to one for repeal and nine more states are voting over four to one wet.

North Carolina continues to show a rising dry vote and is within one-tenth of one per cent of a majority for prohibition with 49.91 per cent of its total balloting so far in favor of the eighteenth amendment.

The east south central states of Kentucky, Alabama, Tennessee, and Mississippi form the dryest sectional group in the United States, although voting wet, with a percentage of their combined totals of 59.62 for repeal.

The geographic unit with the largest vote for repeal is the Middle Atlantic States of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania where the wet balloting is 80.88 per cent of the combined total.

A total of 3,715,630 votes are tallied this week from all states and the District of Columbia of which 955,863, or 25.75 per cent, are for continuance of the prohibition Amendment and 2,759,767, or 74.25 per cent are for repeal.

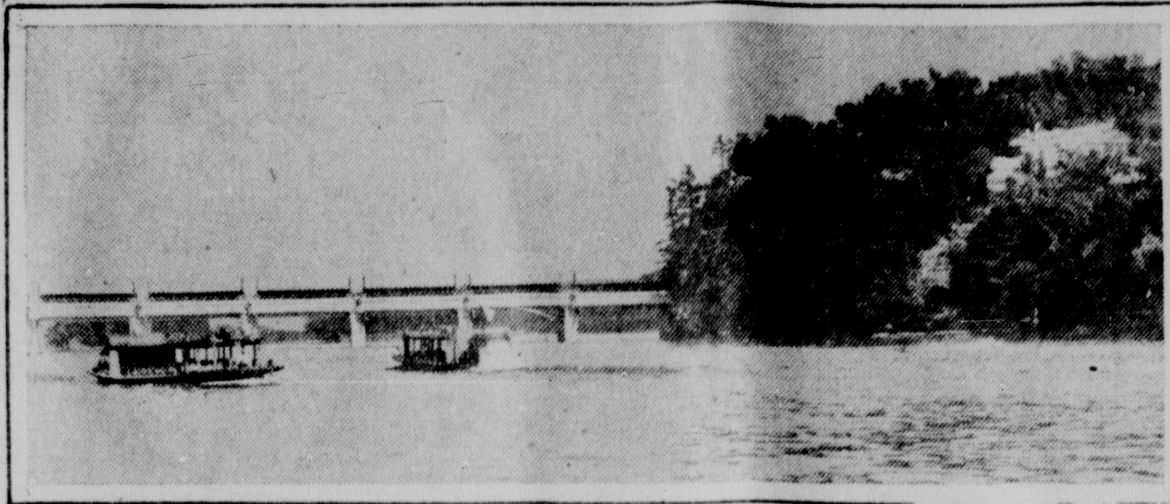

The New England states as a group are voting 78.76 per cent wet; the East North Central states are 75.66 for repeal; the South Atlantic states are 65 per cent wet; the West North Central group are 65.58 per cent for repeal; the West South Central are 60.72 per cent wet; the Rocky Mountain states are 69.97 per cent for repeal; and the three Pacific states are 75.23 per cent wet.

The commonwealths with over 40 per cent sentiment in favor of the Eighteenth Amendment include Kansas, North Carolina, Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Alabama, Colorado and Mississippi, named in order of the higher dry ratio.

The District of Columbia is voting 21.84 per cent dry and 78.16 per cent for repeal of the prohibition Amendment, a slight recession in the dry vote from last week.

Nevada continues to head the anti-prohibition column with 86.60 per cent of its total ballots in favor of repeal. "Just at the height of the excitement," The Literary Digest will state in its issue to-morrow, "Kansas, the solitary Sahara of the

Just Before Starved Rock Dam Gates Were Lowered

Looking up the Illinois river before the gates of the state's $5,000,000 dam at Starved Rock were lowered and Starved Rock pool of the Lakes to the Gulf waterway began to fill. The south end of the dam is attached to Lover's Leap. The lock which does not show in the picture is at the extreme north end of the dam.

Ottawa, Ill., April 1—The last gate in the dam in the Illinois river at Starved Rock state park, ten miles west of Ottawa was lowered into place today and the pool between Starved Rock and Marseilles began to fill.

This is the first completed link in the Illinois waterway a project that had its beginning when the people of the state voted $20,000,000 in state bonds for its construction a quarter century ago.

When the state fund became exhausted with much of the work remaining to be done, the national government took over the project, planning to have the entire waterway between Chicago and the Gulf in operation by next September.

The dam at Starved Rock will raise the water at that point 16 feet, and will result in some of the lower reaches of the canyons in Starved Rock state park being flooded. The park board in anticipation of this condition has planned bridges to take care of the many park trains. Excursion boats which have operated between a landing just north of the Starved Rock hotel and below the dam to Horseshoe canyon a mile above the dam, will transfer their passengers at the north side of the river. Passengers will be carried by boats to a ramp leading to the top of the lock and dam, over which the passengers will walk to a boat on the up-stream side of the dam, with ample time to inspect the lock.

The seventh report in the 1930 Literary Digest prohibition poll giving three options on the ballot instead of two, showed a total tabulation of 3,705,742 votes of which 1,092,745, about 29 1/2 per cent, were for enforcement; 1,105,683 votes, or approximately 30 per cent for modification; 1,507,314, or about 40 1/2 per cent of the total, were for repeal.

In The Literary Digest's prohibition poll in 1922, the seventh week's tabulation showed a total of 787,475 ballots returned of which 302,515, nearly 32 1/2 per cent were for strict enforcement; 322,328, nearly 41 per cent, were for modification and 162,632 or approximately 20 1/2 per cent were for repeal.

The scene is an English school for boys, and there are two sets of lovers, an instructor who falls in love with the headmaster's wife and another instructor who becomes entangled with the young lady music teacher.

The first two are completely destroyed by their love. They cannot make one another happy, and they know it—but they can't leave one another alone, either, and they wind up in a catastrophe that smashes their little world entirely. The other instructor takes love more lightly—only to discover that the music teacher doesn't. Not deeply moved himself, he learns when it is too late that he has ruined the girl's whole life; and the more fact that his intentions and conduct are both irreparable doesn't help matters a bit.

Mr. Winter can write exceedingly well. Proof of it lies in the fact that he can make an essentially unimportant tale seem, while you are reading it, deeply significant. It doesn't amount to much, but it holds your interest.

A BOOK A DAY

SHOW HOW LOVE CAN BE A CURSE

Novelists ordinarily treat love as something romantic and delightful—a pleasing emotion that projects two people into one another's arms and sets them marveling at what a fine place the world can be.

Now and then, though, a writer more hard-boiled than most will describe a different kind of love; a mad flame that is more curse than blessing, that wrecks lives instead of perfecting them, that brings a mixture of ecstasy and utter misery.

You'll find that kind of love story in "The Rats of Norway," by J. Keith Winter.

The scene is an English school for boys, and there are two sets of lovers, an instructor who falls in love with the headmaster's wife and another instructor who becomes entangled with the young lady music teacher.

The first two are completely destroyed by their love. They cannot make one another happy, and they know it—but they can't leave one

The Simpsons were married about six months before the crime was committed. The mangled body of the child was discovered on Oct. 10. Three days later the Simpsons were arrested and admitted the killing.

Great Lakes Ports Unusually Quiet

Cleveland, Mar. 31—(AP)—Unusually humming with activity at this time of year, Great Lakes docks for the most part are idle, although start of the navigation season is at hand.

A few coal boats have cleared from Lake Erie ports, but insurance rates do not become effective until April 15—the date for officially opening navigation. The Detroit & Cleveland Navigation Company opened the season yesterday with the sailing of the first passenger boat from Detroit to Cleveland.

Usually at this time of year the large cargo carrying companies have announced assignments of masters and engineers but this year the number of jobs is uncertain.

Shipping companies are planning to move this year between 12 and 15 million tons of ore from Lake Superior ports to Lake Erie docks, the lowest amount since 1898 and nearly 10 million tons less than last year.

Coal movement to the upper lakes is expected to approximate 25 million tons, five million tons less than in 1931.

President's Work Has Had Its Effect

Portland, Maine, April 1—(AP)—President Hoover's work in preparing a program of constructive legislation "made him grow old, it bent his shoulders, it grayed his hair, but it did not break his heart, it did not weaken his zeal," Seth W. Richardson, Assistant United States Attorney General, told the Maine Republican state convention yesterday.

"It was written by him despite the crushing weight of the great problems which confronted him—while he has been vilified, misrepresented and insulted throughout the length and breadth of the and," he continued in criticizing the Democratic party for claiming credit for Speaker Garner of the House in this action.

He charged the Democrats were blaming their Republican party because "it has not done a better job of cleaning up the last great Democratic mess which embroiled us into the European political mess to the last desperate inch. "None of the conditions which we have thus striven to solve and ameliorate were Republican conditions. Every last one of them was a Democratic heirloom."

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

BY UNITED PRESS

Washington—A little group of Naval officers was gathered just outside the office of Secretary Charles Francis Adams, glancing at a newspaper which told in large headlines of a new clue in the search for kidnapped baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

"Burrage wouldn't have dashed into this thing without first investigating every little detail thoroughly," said one. "He's from Missouri."

The subject of their conversation was retired Rear Admiral Guy Hamilton Burrage and the part he was taking in negotiations at Norfolk, Va., for the return of the baby. The man speaking had shipped under Burrage on the west coast. The others had served with him at one time or another. All were of the opinion the Admiral would not have entered the kidnapping case unless "he was pretty sure of his ground."

A man who carefully scrutinized every detail, Burrage was nicknamed "Ma" by his shipmates because he used extreme care to see that every man aboard ship wore garters and his "jumpers"—trousers to the civilian-laced properly.

At one inspection aboard his ship the Admiral ordered every sailor to lift his "jumpers" leg so that he might survey the socks.

Burrage was retired at Norfolk on June 14, 1931. Although he was born and made his home at Lowell, Mass., he decided to remain near the Norfolk base—perhaps because the thought of leaving the Navy was bitter.

While in command at Norfolk, the Admiral often would stand upon a street corner and enforce the Navy yard speed limit. With his sea-man eye he would estimate the speed which a younger officer was traveling in his car and then send that officer a letter informing him that he had "broken the limit."

Burrage married young—almost as soon as Navy law would permit after graduation from Annapolis. Navy pay then was very low and the Admiral watched every penny. When he went west to take over command of destroyers, he took with him the full dress uniform he wore at Annapolis.

He sent that suit to a tailor to be made over and the tailor, it is said, had to be very careful or he would have punched holes in the Admiral's uniform.

Burrage disliked athletics. He was of frail physique. He spent his leisure reading and pacing the deck. Often he called younger officers and he enjoyed telling them of his war time experiences as a convoy-officer.

The Admiral is a noted authority on seamanship and has written several books about it.

Bright Spots In World Of Business

New York—Revival in the automobile industry was expected in financial circles as Ford, General Motors and Chrysler make bids for new business.

Washington—For the first time in nine months the general farm price index showed an advance, standing at 61 per cent of the 1914 level on March 15, compared with 60 per cent on Feb. 15.

Albany, N. Y.—About 2,400 men will return to work on April 4 at the locomotive and car departments of the New York Central Railroad at West Albany, it was announced. Detroit—Retail deliveries of DeSoto motor cars in the week ending March 19 were the largest of any week in the past 21 months, according to Byron C. Foy, president of this division of the Chrysler Corporation.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Large orders just received have made it necessary for the Toohy Silk Mills, Inc., and the Watertown Silk Mfg. Co., both of Watertown, to operate day and night, it was announced here. Chicago—Duquesne Light Company reported net income for 1931 totaled $14,135,700 against $14,024,981 in 1930.

Roundup Of Wild Horses Under Way

Little Rock Ark. Mar 31 —(AP)—A hard riding band of un-masticated cowboys has started a roundup of wild horses in the south-eastern Arkansas for purely practical purposes.

The jingle of silver spurs is missing. There is no flourish of six-gun. Dogs, modern corals and drift fences have replaced rawhide ropes. And captive animals may wind up pulling a plow instead of in the remuda of an Indian-doin'g rancher or a trapper.

These modern cowboys, most of them plainly clad in overalls, are making the drive as a part of the federal and state tick eradication program.

Vets and corals have been constructed in Chicot and Desha counties where the wild horses roam the swamps and canebrakes, and the animals caught are dipped to prevent them from carrying ticks, given to their captors "sold to defray expenses of the roundup."

The roundup lacks even the magnitude federal and state officials originally expected it to attain. Farmers captured many of the wild animals when flood waters isolated and hemmed in the herds earlier this year. Only few remain.

SAFETY POSTER NUMBER 11. Provided by the CHICAGO MOTOR CLUB.

This poster was just issued by the Chicago Motor Club to more than 39,000 schoolrooms in Illinois and Indiana.

"Always Roller Skate on the Sidewalk—Never in the Street" is the caption above the illustration on the two-color April safety poster just issued by the Chicago Motor Club to more than 39,000 schoolrooms in Illinois and northern Indiana.

The poster clearly illustrates the hazard of skating in the path of vehicles, and also portrays the safety of the sidewalks. In issuing the poster, the motor club called attention to the fact that scores of children have been killed in recent years in Chicago while in the street for some reason other than crossing it. In the same period, the club added, thousands of children have been injured while engaging in the same practices.

Officials of board of education, principals and teachers report that the monthly safety posters are widely used as subjects of compositions and as the basis of general class discussions. By these means, the safety lesson portrayed by them are impressed upon juvenile minds.

Sportsmen Urge U. S. Heads Stop Duck Meddling

Washington—Urging that the government in the future confine its regulations in behalf of waterfowl to major issues, such as designating the opening and closing dates of a maximum shooting season and the maximum number of birds each hunter may take or have in possession, has been recommended by the board of directors of the American Game Association, according to announcement made today by Seth Gordon president.

With improved breeding conditions this spring, the board also urged a continuous waterfowl season of not less than two months for next fall, with the states having full regulatory and enforcement powers over the manner of taking the birds.

These recommendations sprang from the friction engendered among wildfowl hunters last fall when the Department of Agriculture fixed a 30-day emergency season. Duck hunters of many states got little or no shooting, the short season failing to coincide with the southward migration of waterfowl. A short, concentrated hunting season was declared to be "unwise as a general rule."

In the opinion of the board the rightful function of the states in regulating such details as rest days, restricted hours of shooting, use of decoys, baiting, type of guns and placing of blinds and sink-boxes should not be interfered with by the federal government.

The board recognized a shortage of wild ducks, but declared that "the future of waterfowl hunting depends upon the active interest of sportsmen in restoring and perpetuating the waterfowl supply. This active interest in conservation depends in turn upon reasonable annual shooting privileges."

Left to shift for themselves, wild ducks would soon be choked out of existence by depletion of natural nesting, resting and feeding areas, starvation, concentration and disease, the board reasoned.

"Sportsmen are now aroused to the necessity for spending more time and money saving areas for waterfowl—fundamental conservation which would be jeopardized by sport-spoiling measures," the board agreed.

It endorsed in principle a statement recently distributed by the Emergency Waterfowl Committee of the Massachusetts Fish and Game Association, which, in effect, opposed too much meddling by the Federal government in the management of wildfowl shooting.

Former Iowa U. Officials Held

Iowa City, March 31 —(UP)—Warrants were issued in Justice of the Peace Court today for the arrest of W. J. McChesney, former Treasurer of the University of Iowa, and Charles A. Brown, former university labor foreman, an information filed by County Attorney Floyd B. Olson.

McChesney, former president of the First National Bank and The Farmers Loan and Trust Company, is charged with embezzlement and, Brown in two counts of forgery, and in one of uttering a forged instrument.

Representatives of the office of Attorney General John Fletcher, who has been conducting an investigation, said leads and data were furnished by Allen, Busby & Herriman, Des Moines accountants who were employed by the state Executive Council to audit the books.

Fortune Found In Shack Of Recluse

Ridgway, Pa., March 31 —(UP)—Securities valued at thousands of dollars were found in the cold, dark shack where Alferd Carlson 65, died after years of self-imposed privation.

Carlson's body today is in a casket that cost $1,000. For years he had bought only over-ripe fruit and stale bread for food.

A search of Carlson's hut brought to light $35,000 in Liberty Bonds, building and loan stock and other investments. He had been employed as a night watchman at a machine shop until a few years ago.

The man was not married. He is believed to have a brother and sister in Sweden.

There are no direct descendants of George Washington living.

APRIL HAD ONLY 29 DAYS UNTIL JULIUS CAESAR ADDED THE 30TH, DURING HIS CALENDAR REVISION. IN NERO'S ROMAN, THE MONTH WAS CALLED NERONEUS.

ALL FOOL'S DAY EXISTED AS FAR BACK AS THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY, BUT ITS ORIGIN IS UNKNOWN.

The DAISY, FLOWER OF APRIL, WAS ORIGINALLY CALLED "THE DAY'S EYE," BECAUSE IT OPENED ONLY IN THE DAYTIME.

After examining thousands of men, a group of New York scientists concluded that early middle-aged farmers are healthier than any other class of men in the United States.

The smallest fog particles have been measured by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It was found that 25,000 of them could be placed on the head of an ordinary pin.

Machines That Are Almost Human

By E. C. TAYLOR

The Great Brass Brain

IN THE office of the United States coast and geodetic survey in Washington is a "thinking machine" that in seven hours does the work of fifty to one hundred mathematicians working continuously for a year.

It is called the Great Brass Brain by scientists. Its task is to predict the tides for 4300 ports of the world, and it predicts these tides for a year ahead, in less than an average working day for man.

The Great Brass Brain does this work with absolute accuracy. Its mechanical computations are rapidly completed without the possibility of error to which human computers would be subject.

This marvel of scientific achievement stands six feet high. It is eleven feet long and two feet wide. Upon this labor-saving device depends the safety of American shipping throughout the world.

In figuring out tides for a year in advance, thirty-seven factors enter into each computation. The tide rises and falls 1,400 times a year at any given place on the earth. The Great Brass Brain not only figures them out, but in its calculations it provides against all variants, such as spring tides and neap tides, and tells the extra height to which the water may be expected to rise or fall.

Once each year, when the United States coast and geodetic survey prepared its annual guide for mariners, the wheels of the Great Brass Brain are set in motion, and before the day is ended there is ready for the printing presses the most exact information as to how the tides will perform during the coming year in 800 principal ports of the world and 3,500 secondary ports.

The result of the Great Brass Brain's work gives mariners all the information about tides that they could require for a year to come.

and keeps many a vessel from becoming stranded on a shoal because of low water as it makes for port.

The Great Brass Brain can deliver hundreds of years into the future, or go back centuries into the past if called upon, and accurately answer any mathematical question concerning those future or ancient times. It can tell exactly how high the tide will be at New York, New Orleans or San Francisco in 2131, or whether there was high tide when the Spanish Armada set forth to conquer the world.

One of the household legends of American history recently was blasted by the Great Brass Brain. Historians of the American Revolution generally accepted the legend that it was the British army long enough to give Paul Revere a chance to complete his thrilling ride, on which he called the Minute Men to arms and made it possible for the American colonists to launch their war for independence.

Seekers after exact facts failed to find any documentary evidence to substantiate the legend that the waters of the sea helped Paul Revere, and that small phase of American history became clouded with doubt.

So the Great Brass Brain was consulted. It was asked whether the British army, that left Boston at eleven o'clock that historic night, and crossed to East Cambridge, Mass., were held there until two o'clock in the morning because the tide was against them and they could not continue their march against the colonists.

Even Henry W. Longfellow's poem, "The Ride of Paul Revere," contained this legend. Did Providence take a hand? Historians wanted to know.

The Great Brass Brain quickly disposed of the myth. Providence didn't help Paul Revere at all, the "thinking machine" proved. The machine's wheels whirled, and out came the answer that instead of the tides retarding the British army, they were most favorable for their continued advance on to Concord between eleven o'clock that night and two o'clock the next morning.

the man HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

©1932 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SUSAN CAREY, who lives with her Aunt Jessie on Chicago's west side, is learning shorthand at a downtown business school. ROBERT DUNBAR, heir to the Dunbar fortune, is a student at the same school. Susan has little glee, since her aunt objects to her having callers. At a neighborhood party the girl meets a dark, moody young man named BEN LAMPMAN. He seems attracted to her, and escorts her home. The next day she collides with young Dunbar in the elevator at school. He asks her to lunch with him. Susan feels too shabby for the restaurant he suggests but he insists on her coming.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

AFTER the glare of the street and the dim coolness of the big restaurant was almost startling. Young Dunbar knew the maitre d'hotel. That dignity was all smiles for the heir to the Dunbar millions. He found them a small, cozy table by a window and lingered attentively, bringing the menu himself.

"Now, tell me," said Susan's host, smiling across the table at her when the order had been given. "Tell me what you're doing in this business sweatshop of ours."

Susan wondered why young men always seemed to assume that girls went in for business as a whim. Seriously she said, "I've got to earn my living."

Just why this answer should have abashed the young man she couldn't understand. He reddened.

"Sorry. That was a dumb question. Just wondered—here he floundered more than ever—"Just wondered why a girl as pretty as you shouldn't be in pictures or on the stage."

Susan buttered a roll. "Poor girls have to go in for safer jobs," she said sentimentally. She was echoing Aunt Jessie quite unconsciously. "Besides, you know Hollywood is filled with girls out of jobs. They can't all be stars."

The waiter intruded with half a dozen small silver dishes mysteriously hooded. Demurely Susan permitted herself to be served. Sweetbreads, omelette, creamed potatoes, little golden potato balls—this food was not even distantly related to the fare Aunt Jessie served at the white kitchen table at home.

SUSAN refused an ice and a cigarette and sipped her coffee with a pleasant sense of well being. "Why are you at Black's?" he countered lazily as young Mr. Dunbar signed the check and slipped some silver on the tray.

The Po Is Only Large River In All Of Italy

Recently Italy started work on an ambitious project to turn the unruly Po river into a highway of commerce from Milan to Venice. The project will take several years for completion, and an expenditure of close to 300 million lire. A bulletin from the National Geographic Society describes the Po River and the rich country tributary to it.

Drains Italian Alps

"The Po is a surprise to many observers, who can not at first understand how a really large river can flow from east to west for 416 miles in obviously narrow Italy," says the bulletin. "The explanation is that the Po lies just outside the peninsula portion of Italy. The top of the 'Italian boot' flares up into the European mainland among the Alps and it is in this continental part of Italy that the Po flows. Across this northernmost part of Italy it is approximately 400 miles from French to Yugoslavian territory; and the Po, because of its many meanders, easily runs up its high mileage in the somewhat shorter air line distance from the French frontier to the Adriatic coast."

"The Po Valley is unique among European river basins because of its great extent of almost level land for long distances inland. Viewed on a relief map, this great tongue of low land is seen to cut Italy almost in two. There is a reason for this. Not long ago, geologically, the sea extended into northern Italy along the foot of the Alps almost to the present French border. The great Po basin is the old gulf, filled now with alluvial material washed down from the mountains. The relatively large flow of the Po, especially at certain seasons, is owing to the fact that the basin is hemmed in on three sides by mountains (the Alps to north and west, the Apennines to the south) and the run-off from these heights is at times very rapid. The river flows along virtually the entire stretch of the Italian Alps, and receives water from most of their southern glaciers and lakes.

"Because the 'plain of the Po' is so nearly level, particularly in its seaward half, the river has brought disastrous floods to the residents along its course, throughout historic times. Even during the early days of Rome it was necessary to build dikes and embankments to restrain the rising waters. During the early part of the dark ages after the fall of Rome these protective works fell into decay. The river wandered over the plain, each major flood creating new channels. Large areas of the rich valley reverted to marsh. Long before the Renaissance the work of restoring the Po's dikes and constructing drainage canals was begun, and by 1500 the valley was again well protected. This region was one of the earliest in Europe to see the development of reclamation engineering as well as the construction of canals for water supply and commerce. In the twelfth century Milanese engineers constructed their Grand Ship Canal from Milan to the Ticino River, making use of locks.

Works Rivals Holland's
"In recent centuries the embankment and dike system of the Po has gone on developing, until the protective works rival those of The Netherlands. In many sections the confined river flows at a level much higher than the protected fertile fields. About three million acres are protected by dikes, and approximately 5,000 square miles of land are under irrigation. This latter area exceeds that of the entire State of Connecticut.

"Since the river has been confined to a narrow course, the silt which formerly was spread over a wide delta, now is washed into the sea. The coast near the principal mouth of the Po is being built outward at a rapid rate. Sand dunes marking the site of the coast of some centuries ago, are now 15 miles inland.

"The level sweep of the Po Valley is its natural fertility, and the ease with which it can be cultivated make it an enormously productive region. It has been so from the earliest times. In the days of ancient Rome it was a source of wheat, of cattle pastured on irrigated meadows, and of swine which fed on the mast of the forests that covered the foothills. Today it produces all these products and besides large quantities of rice. Mulberries are grown to feed silk worms, and vineyards cover wide areas. Milan and Turin, situated in the Po basin, are populous cities and prosperous centers of industry and commerce; and scattered through the valley are numerous thriving local market towns. The region is one of the most populous in Italy.

"Although tremendous amounts of money and time have been spent on the Po through the centuries, the works have been primarily protective against floods and for the taking of irrigation water. The new project will supplement this by making the stream navigable for larger boats and longer distances. The plans call for numerous dams and weirs to regulate the depth and for reservoirs to impound surplus water and regulate the flow."

Doolittle Breaks

Another Record

Detroit, March 31—UP.—Major James H. Doolittle placed his little Laird monoplane on exhibit at the National Aircraft Show today after racing it from St. Louis to Detroit, a distance of 460 miles in one hour and 51 minutes.

Averaging 235 miles per hour, the former Army flier broke all records for the St. Louis-Detroit hop. He flew "the same plane to a new transcontinental record of 11 hours, 15 minutes during the National A. C. Races last fall. The Bendix Trophy won in the dash from Los Angeles to New York, will be awarded Doolittle at the show here.
